It is a pleasure to inform you that the 4th International Fatty Pig Science and Utilization Conference will be held in Badajoz (Extremadura, Spain) on November 23rd to 25th, 2017.

The nearest airport is in Lisbon, and transportation from Lisbon to Badajoz will be provided. Also, you can fly to Barcelona or Madrid and then fly again to a small airport close to the city of Badajoz, but it is important to check carefully the flight schedules to Badajoz, because there is only one flight a day.

In this conference, several researchers from all over the world working in several aspects of fatty pig production will share their recent results. They will discuss the latest developments on fatty pig production, genetics, reproduction, nutrition, technology, biotechnology, meat and meat product quality, as well as social and economical issues related to the production of these pig breeds.

A web page specially designed for this conference is under construction and will be finished soon. However, in the meantime, you can start preparing your abstracts. The deadline for abstract submission will be June 15th.

Attached to this e-mail you can find a provisional program for the event, and soon you will receive the specific rules for abstract submission.

We hope you come to Extremadura and enjoy this conference.
